The Hymns	1 - 55

For Your Information...

Performing from a “lead sheet” or a “fake book” is an extremely rewarding experience. This format is used constantly by guitarists, pianists and organists. A single melody line is shown with chord symbols above it and lyrics below. The complexity of the accompaniment style is determined by the personal style and capability of the performer. This method of notation has become more and more popular in the harp community over the past twenty years. It is now applied to hymn selections from the Mormon repertoire specifically edited for both lever and pedal harp simultaneously.

I have divided these selections into three categories:

In Category 1, each melody note is either the root, third or fifth of a diatonic triad. On the dominant chord in the key signature there may be a fourth note – the seventh. This is identified by a chord symbol such as “G7.”

In Category 2, in addition to the chords mentioned above, there are also “non-harmonic” tones. They are identified as neighboring notes, passing tones and accented passing tones.

In Category 3, chords from outside the key signature are used. A chord called a “secondary” or “borrowed” dominant is used. In the key of C Major, that would involve a D7 chord that leads to a G chord. The pitch of F sharp that is required for the D7 chord is easily produced by a pedal movement. For lever harp, it is frequently omitted from the chord and only a root and fifth (and possibly a seventh) are used. The harmony is implied, but still quite satisfactory. There is another division of Category 3 tunes that are identified with an asterisk as “3*.” These entries have an accidental in the melody line and require lever harps to accomplish a lever movement in order to play the required pitch. Lever movements are indicated by diamond shaped notes accompanied by the appropriate accidental. They are placed in a rhythmic location as a suggestion for a convenient place for movement. And, there are seven entries that are not recommended for lever harp due to their harmonic complexity.

Performance suggestions for these three categories are supplied. It is highly recommended that harpists who are new to this notation pay careful attention to these musical examples and try to employ their basic principles before expanding into a fuller style of playing. Additionally, a “Chord Dictionary” is supplied. This gives the complete spelling of the diatonic triads and their inversions (including the dominant 7th chord) in all of the keys used in this collection.

Playing from a “lead sheet” or a “fake book” is a lot like cooking. You have basic ingredients. You have flour, sugar and eggs. You have melody, harmony and rhythm. How rich do you want your cake to be? How full do you want your chords to sound? How many people will your recipe serve? How many verses do you want to play? Should you decorate your cake? Should you play up an octave / down an octave / a solo melody line / doubled hands / low bass notes? The choices and comparisons go on and on. You are the “cook.” You are the performer. The final product is one of your own making. There is no right or wrong way of doing it. There are choices!

The table of contents of this collection is given in three different formats. To begin with, the first line of text of each entry appears in alphabetical order. This is the basic organization of the entire collection. (A few entries have been adjusted due to page layout requirements for some two-page melodies.) Another listing gives the category of each tune. If you are unfamiliar with this style of playing, you might want to begin with the Category 1 tunes first, and then study your way through the Category 2, 3 and 3* tunes in a regimented fashion.

At the heading of each entry, beneath the first line of text which serves as a title, there are two more important pieces of information. There are names and numbers such as "Eventide - 166" or "Gloria - 100." These indicate the actual name of the tune (regardless of any text that might be used with it) and the page on which it exists in the official church collection titled, quite simply, "Hymns." If you would like to see the full harmonization of the melody, please consult that reference.

Below the listing of the tune name and page number from "Hymns," you will find the particular category of that entry listed. This is a quick indication of the complexity of the piece and what requirements you may have to fulfill in performance.

Playing from a "lead sheet" or "fake book" is a tremendous liberation for the performer(s). Instant arrangements are possible once an adequate vocabulary of accompanimental techniques are learned. If you need extra study in harmony, please refer to my publication "3's a Chord." For more information on playing advanced harmonies, please consult either "Clever Levers" for lever harpists or "Blazing Pedals" volume 1 for pedal harpists. A detailed study of lead sheet playing is available in "Blazing Pedals" volume 2. In spite of its name including the word "pedals," this book is very useful for lever harpists, too.

Words of thanks...

I would like to thank Shru de Li Ownbey, Director of Lyon & Healy West, for her encouragement with this project. Without her suggestions over the years, it would never have come to pass.

I would like to thank Murray Boren, also of Lyon & Healy West, for his considerable advice. His knowledge of the repertoire provided welcomed support for the final selection of entries.

I would like to thank John Sheridan for his continued availability as a proof-reader and friend.

Finally, I would like to thank Laurita Williams of Tulsa, OK, and John Kubinieć of New York City for their ongoing support of my efforts in church music using the harp. They have both provided me with wonderful opportunities for church performance over the years.
